

Doug Grossa

My Brownie Twin followed me for three years in the United States Navy and through graduate school. I met my wife Sally in 1974 and when she took my wanderlust seriously, I progressed to a Minolta SLR. In our early travels, we also lugged a Sony video camera that connected to a twelve pound, harness-like backpack, VHS recorder.

Our travels are mostly snapshots but you'll have to be the judge. Click on the link below and take a look at our thirty-six You Tubes. They are stills with soothing background music: <https://www.youtube.com/playlist?list=UURXt5FhwT487c-9dmGh25qA>.

Sally and I worked and lived in Bangkok for three years and Australia for a year. Those places were the impetus for frequent travels. We've journeyed through forty-nine states and more than eighty countries, making five world circumnavigations. Maybe that's why I get to Club meetings so infrequently.

Biographical info: Born in Detroit and lived in the four corners of Michigan for most of my career. I worked as a psychologist in mental health and public and private schools for over forty years. I retired to Florida in 2005. In addition to photography, my recently completed novel may someday be published: <http://www.douglasgrossa.com/>
